International Traffic in Arms Regulation (ITAR), ITAR 130 and Export Administration Regulations (EAR) Policy

The International Traffic in Arms Regulations (ITAR) regulates defense related goods, services, and technologies exported to foreign countries to further US foreign policy and to ensure the national security of the United States. ASSET InterTech does not export goods, services, or software that falls under ITAR. Information that is designated as being ITAR related by a customer will be handled securely by ASSET InterTech in compliance with all regulations of ITAR in regards to information and technology.

The International Traffic in Arms Regulations (ITAR) part 130 defines political contributions as being over 1,000 USD and at the benefit of foreign political entities or to promote the sales of defense related goods and services by donating politically to foreign powers. ASSET InterTech does not contribute financially by cash or by other means such as, loans or gifts to any foreign political entities described in ITAR part 130 or domestically.

The Export Administration Regulations (EAR) states regulations on the export and reexport of physical commodities and technologies like software. There are lists of various countries that are restricted from this trade unless the seller has a license exception which can only be given by the United States Government. ASSET InterTech abides by these regulations and does not export to countries that have been placed on restricted lists.
